Our firms' primary objective is to dispose of your case by putting you in the best possible position in light of your charges. Once your case is disposed of, our office will promptly notify you regarding the results. We will send you a disposition letter and court cost sheet if applicable.

That disposition letter will tell you:

- What the outcome of your case was.
- How much your court costs and fines are, (if any).
- How long you have till those costs are due.
- The consequences for not paying them on time.
- How to pay for your court costs.
- Where to pay your court costs.

If you fail to inform our office of an address change and/or fail to check on your court case, then our office is not responsible for any fines or legal action the state may take against you.
